

ABSTRACT

Embodiments of the present application provide a positioning method and device, a path determination method and device, a robot and a storage medium. The positioning method includes: determining first position information of the robot by a positioning part; collecting an image by a camera; and determining second position information of the robot according to the image. The first position information and the second position information are fused to obtain the positioning information of the robot.

[Figure 1]