

ABSTRACT

The embodiments disclose a warning method, which includes that: a first image frame sequence obtained by photographing a game table in a prop operating stage of a game is acquired, the game table including at least one placement region configured for token placement; initial information of a token in each the placement region is acquired, the initial information of the token including information of a token placed by a gamer participating in the game before the game enters the prop operating stage; change information of the token in each the placement region in the prop operating stage is detected based on the first image frame sequence and the initial information of the token; and a warning is given based on the change information of the token in each the placement region. The embodiments also provide a warning apparatus and device, and a storage medium.

[FIG. 2]