

ABSTRACT

Provided in the embodiments of the present disclosure are a system information transmission method, a communication apparatus, and a communication device. A data transmission method may comprise: a network device dividing target system information into a plurality of segments; and sending the plurality of segments to a terminal device. In this way, the transmission reliability of system information is improved.

FIG. 2