ABSTRACT

MARKER FOR DETERMINATION OF SENSITIVITY TO ANTI-CANCER AGENT

Disclosed is a marker for use in the determination of the sensitivity to an anti-cancer agent, which can determine the therapeutic response in individual patients. Also disclosed is a novel cancer treatment means utilizing the marker. Specifically disclosed is a marker for use in the determination of the sensitivity to an anti-cancer agent, which comprises a substance involved in the metabolic system associated with L-phenylalanine and/or N,N-dimethylglycine.

Fig. 1