

ABSTRACT

The disclosure relates to a method and apparatus for text recognition, an electronic device and a storage medium. The method includes that: feature extraction is performed on a text image to obtain feature information of the text image; and a text recognition result of the text image is acquired according to the feature information, the text image including at least two characters, the feature information including a text association feature, and the text association feature being configured to represent an association between characters in the text image.

[Figure 1]