

AIR ASSISTED ALKALINE CELLS

The present invention relates to air-assisted alkaline cells having a cathode which comprises a mixture of porous and substantially solid manganese dioxide, the porous component allowing air to permeate the cathode so as to allow recharging of the cathode without having to use internal air distribution means.

---

This Sheet Has Been Replaced

