ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In order that only necessary video images are recorded in recording means equipped in a door camera unit, the door camera unit set so that its imaging direction is directed to a neighborhood of an entrance of a building is provided with a video memory. When a visitor operates a chime switch, or unless the chime switch is operated in a predetermined period of time after a detection signal has been inputted from a human body detecting sensor, a video image is recorded in the video memory.

This Sheet Has Been Replaced

