Electronic chip for storing plurality of linked accounts

ABSTRACT

According to a first aspect of the invention, there is provided a carrier comprising an electronic chip having stored thereon data identifying a plurality of accounts each linked to a respective issuer, wherein the electronic chip is configured to instruct a terminal reading the electronic chip to prompt for selection of one of the plurality of linked accounts before initiating a financial transaction.

Figure 1