

ABSTRACT

The present invention has been designed for credit bureaus.

The objective of this invention is to check online user data for correctness and to use score models based on non-personal data of users to assess risks.

An additional objective of this invention involves checking user rights to access certain resources.