ABSTRACT

An image processing apparatus 4 includes an identification information receiving unit 70 that receives identification information of a user, an authorizer information receiving unit 74 that receives information about an authorizer who authorizes the user of the received identification information to proceed with a procedure for processing a case; an image acquisition unit 82 that acquires an image; and an image transmission unit 84 that transmits the acquired image as an image relating to the authorizer based on a transmission instruction from the user.