Abstract

HOLISTIC TIME MANAGEMENT SYSTEM

A holistic time management system is substantially as herein described with reference to its corresponding figure(s). A holistic time management apparatus comprises · a computer that is configured to execute algorithms of artificial intelligence; and at least one sensor connected to the computer that is configured to detect behaviors of a user of the computer. The computer is configured to enable or disable at least one application software package of the computer depending on input from the sensor.

(Fig. 18)