

A Pole Holder Cover

Abstract

5 A pole holder cover for covering the opening of a pole holder is described for preventing collection of rainwater in the pole holder. The pole holder cover comprises a body coupled to a pole holder and a first structure is coupled to the body for displacing between a first position and a second position. The first structure being resiliently biased towards the first position, wherein the first structure impedes
10 access to the opening of the channel when in the first position, whereby the first structure is displaceable towards the second position for substantially enabling access to the channel.

15 Figure 1