

LINKER

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a linker and use thereof. The linker of the present invention is a linker including: an attachment part having a structure that can be attached to a desired genetic information material; and at least two or more puromycin-like substances, wherein each of the puromycin-like substances can be covalently bonded to a C-terminus of a desired peptide.