

ABSTRACT

Disclosed are a method and an apparatus for controlling a process, the method including the steps of: obtaining process information and storing the process information by time period; and displaying the movement state of the at least one logistics robot on a process map together with at least one piece of the process information when a replay request designating an output condition of the process information is input.

Fig. 5