

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention relates to a medical information query and input method, and a program and a system for performing same, and provided are a medical information query and 5 input method, and a program and a system for performing same, the medical information query and input method comprising the steps of: retrieving, from a database, a patient's medical information prior to a reference date; generating, from the patient's medical information, each object by date according to a set field item; and serially displaying, on an interface, each of the objects in a separate section form by date in a corresponding field.

FIG. 1