

Abstract

5 The present invention relates to aqueous suspensions comprising metal carbide particles and dispersants and to a process for coating substrates using these aqueous suspensions. The invention further relates to the coated substrates producible by the process according to the invention and to the uses thereof.

10