

Phone Case Inlay Greeting Card

Abstract

A greeting card is constructed of at least one panel and can be fitted into a transparent snap-on phone case, acting as a decorative inlay for the phone case. It has at least one window that reveals devices like camera and flashlight normally located at the back of the body of mobile phones. It may be die-cut to fit into a transparent snap-on phone case meant for use with a particular mobile phone model, or it may also be adapted to fit into transparent snap-on phone cases of alternative mobile phone models. The greeting card may also be a detachable panel or section within the borders of a larger secondary greeting card.

Figure 6