Abstract

A technique is provided for reducing the discoloration of an aqueous composition containing a halogenated isoquinoline derivative during high-temperature preservation. An aqueous composition comprising a compound represented by Formula (1):

(1)

wherein X represents a halogen atom, or a salt thereof, or a solvate of the compound or the salt thereof, and a β blocker.