Abstract

An object of the present invention is to provide stem cells having excellent proliferation ability and differentiation ability. The present invention relates to stem cells isolated from a neonatal pig, and a preparation method therefor.