

ABSTRACT

A semiconductor memory device includes a semiconductor substrate including a first circuit group and a second circuit group spaced apart from each other. The memory device also includes a memory cell array
5 overlapping with the semiconductor substrate. The memory device further includes a vertical conductive line crossing the memory cell array, the vertical conductive line being connected to the first circuit group and the second circuit group.

10 FIG. 4