

ABSTRACT

Provided in the embodiments of the present disclosure is a method for reporting terminal capability information, which method is executed by a terminal. The method comprises: reporting first terminal capability information for packet paging, wherein the first terminal capability information is at least used for indicating that the terminal supports or does not support the paging of a terminal by means of packet paging.

FIG. 2