Method for loading a reactor with a fixed catalyst bed which comprises at least one annular-shaped catalyst body K

Abstract

A process for charging a reactor with a fixed catalyst bed which comprises at least one annular shaped support catalyst body K, in which, before the charging, fragments formed in the preparation of the shaped catalyst bodies K are removed by screening.