

ABSTRACT

A data synchronization method, comprising: receiving any transaction data, the any transaction data carrying an update operation identifier and a sensitive phrase corresponding to the update operation identifier; when a target block containing the any transaction data is stored in a blockchain of a blockchain system, acquiring the update operation identifier and the sensitive phrase in the target block; and updating a sensitive phrase database according to the update operation identifier and the sensitive phrase in the target block.

Figure 2