

Method for handling aqueous methanesulfonic acid solutions

Abstract

5

The present invention relates to a method for handling aqueous solutions of methanesulfonic acid in apparatuses comprising austenitic steels having a chromium content of from 15 to 22% by weight and a nickel content of from 9 to 15% by weight.

Figure 1