

Abstract

A performance index acquisition module (101A) of an abnormality determination system (1) acquires, based on a utilization situation about a service providing system (2) for providing a predetermined service, a performance index about performance of the service. An abnormality determination module (102) executes, based on the performance index, abnormality determination with regard to an occurrence of abnormality in the service providing system.