

ABSTRACT

The disclosure provides a method and apparatus for generating a video, a device, and a storage medium. The method includes: displaying, in response to a triggering operation for a preset co-shooting control on a shooting page, at least two canvases on the shooting page; determining multimedia resources corresponding to the at least two canvases respectively; and generating a co-shot resultant video based on the multimedia resources corresponding to the at least two canvases respectively.