

Telephone number verification

Abstract

The invention comprises a method and a computer program for determining an originating telephone number of a telecommunications terminal and associating it with at least one data transmitted to a server in the course of an installation of application software on a telecommunications terminal or linked with a download of the application software or included in the downloaded application software. In the course of detecting the voice call setup request, no call setup is performed by the server.

[FIG .1]