

ABSTRACT

Embodiments of the present application provide a communication method, a terminal device and a network device. The method includes: a terminal device determines beam correspondence information, where the beam correspondence 5 information indicates a beam correspondence between an uplink transmitting beam and a downlink receiving beam of the terminal device; and the terminal device transmits the beam correspondence information to a network device. The communication method according to embodiments of the present invention can alleviate the burden on devices.

Fig. 2