

ABSTRACT

The embodiments of the present disclosure provide a method, apparatus, and system for processing data and an electronic device. The method includes: obtaining image collection data respectively sent by a plurality of collection devices in a target place, wherein the image collection data is obtained by the collection devices by performing image detection on one or more place images, and each of the one or more place images is an image of a region in the target place which corresponds to the collection device; obtaining region statistics data corresponding to a plurality of regions of the target place by statistical processing the image collection data; and visualizing the region statistics data.

[Fig. 2]