

Abstract of Disclosure

In a refractory coating material formed by stacking an external material layer that includes at least a metal foil layer on a heat-insulating material layer composed of a flame-retardant fibrous material, at least the metal foil layer is subjected to an irregularity-imparting processing in order to prevent formation of conspicuous creases in the metal foil layer or to prevent the metal foil layer from being torn.