

Abstract

The embodiments of the present disclosure relate to an information transmission method and apparatus, a communication device, and a storage medium. A base station receives first capability indication information, wherein the first capability indication information indicates whether a user equipment (UE) supports a paging early indication (PEI).

FIG. 2