

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides an organic film that is sufficiently excellent in adhesive properties between a metal and a resin. The present invention relates to an organic film disposed on a metal surface, wherein the organic film comprises a silane coupling agent, and the organic film has a protrusion protruding to a side opposite to the metal.