ABSTRACT

An information recording medium has a substrate and a recording layer on the substrate, the recording layer is partially transformable between a crystalline state and an amorphous state by being partially heated and cooled so that a signal is recorded in the recording layer by the partial transformation, and the recording layer includes oxygen.

G00002

162162