wherein for each circuit of the respective plurality:

said circuit corresponds to a respective circuit layout which is arranged such that:

(a) the corresponding circuit, when triggered, falls into any one of two or more respective triggered states, and

(b) one of the two or more respective triggered states is a respective preferred state defined by said circuit layout, wherein the respective individualized plurality of respective preferred states encode respective individualization data.