

ABSTRACT

5

In a phase-lock-loop circuit a frequency detector measures a frequency error between an oscillatory signal and a synchronizing signal in alternate horizontal line periods for generating a frequency error indicative signal. The frequency error indicative signal is applied to an oscillator for correcting the frequency error in other alternate horizontal line periods in a manner to prevent frequency error measurement and correction from occurring in the same horizontal line period.

10

This Sheet Has Been Replaced

THIS SHEET HAS BEEN REPLACED