

ABSTRACT

A method of delivering granular material to transporting means, in which the water content in the granular material is measured and/or registered near the delivering place transporting said granular material.

This Sheet Has Been Replaced

