

ABSTRACT

In a flexible wiring board of the present invention, a first shield film is connected to a ground wiring at the bottom of an opening in a cover film. The first shield film is connected to a second shield film via a through-hole penetrating from the surface to the rear surface of a base film. Thus, the second shield film is connected to the ground wiring via the first shield film, whereby the wiring board can be wholly shielded.

162162

G0000?