

TRAINING ENTERPRISE AND METHOD THEREFOR

ABSTRACT

5 A training enterprise (100) comprises a basic training services portion (120), an enhanced training-user services portion (125), and an enhanced training-provider services portion (130) which are coupled to a common training service request processor (105) and a training services delivery module (135). The basic training services portion (120), 10 the training service request processor (105) and the training services delivery module (135) form a learning exchange (102). The training service request processor (105) receives training service requirements, and dependent on those requirements, either the learning exchange (102) or the enhanced training-user services portion (125), or both, 15 provides the training-user with the required training-user services.
Similarly, a training-provider communicates training-provider service requirements to the training service request processor (105), and dependent on the training-provider service requirements, the learning exchange (102) or the enhanced training-provider services portion (130), 20 or both, provide the training-provider with the required services.

FIG.1 accompanies the abstract.