ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

When an abnormality or a sign of abnormality occurs in an electric power generating facility, an appropriate operating support can be made in a short time.

The electric power facility operation remote supporting method in accordance with the present invention is characterized by that an abnormality or a sign of abnormality is judged based on at least one of information on an operating state of the electric power generating facility and information on time-varying characteristics of components in the electric power generating facility, and a service mode is set based on the judged information of the abnormality or the sign of abnormality, preset abnormality corrective data and preset service modes.

G00002

162162