

ABSTRACT

The present application discloses a rotor. The rotor comprises a blade, a plurality of protruding structures protrude from the surface of the blade, the plurality of protruding structures are sequentially arranged at intervals in the spanwise direction of the blade, and a height difference is formed between every two adjacent protruding structures.

(FIG.2)