ASP SERVICE APPARATUS

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A member management system including a characteristic of "ASP member management" which can group member information according to attributes of services provided by the ASP, which are the highest-level attributes, and member contract information keys which are held by the ASP for all members based on common rules. Then, a table can be prepared for storing attributes of services provided by the ASP, and attributes of a billing group unit and a service utilization condition, in association with the member contract information keys, such that the most basic information required for particular processing is extracted at each occasion for executing the processing.

FIGURE 1