ACOUSTIC TRANSDUCER AUTOMATED START AND RUN

ABSTRACT

An operating point for control of an acoustic transducer can drift during operation and be compensated. A model for the transducer and/or environment frequency response is provided and used to compensate feedback from the transducer to determine an adjustment for the operating point. The model can be recalibrated during operation.

[Figure 17]