

ABSTRACT

A load measurement method, for measuring the load applied to a rail from a wheel of a railcar, calculates the lateral force applied to the rail from each of the left and right wheels, on the basis of the axial force applied to an axle (13) between the left and right wheels and the axial load applied to the axle bearing.