

ABSTRACT

The invention discloses a method for realizing interaction between a business system and a plurality of components, belongs to a field of connecting method among systems. The method for realizing the interaction between a business system and a plurality of components includes steps of: S1, configuring at least one component in a frame system; S2, displaying the frame system configured with the components on the front page of the main business system; S3, by clicking on components displayed on the front page of the main business system, a user jumping from the main business system and logging to a front page of another business system defined by the clicked component.