

Abstract

APPARATUS AND METHOD ELECTROCHEMICAL DETECTION

The present invention is directed to a sensor with opposing electrodes and test strips using this sensor. The invention can be used to measure blood or plasma coagulation in assays like prothrombin time (PT) and thrombin potential, for example, in point-of-care monitoring of anticoagulants.

Figure 1.

