

Abstract

[Summary]

[Problem] To provide a lid, a container with a lid, and a combination of a lid and a container that can suppress the contents from protruding onto the lid through the through portion when the lid has a through portion and covers the opening of the container.

[Solution] The lid has a body formed to be joinable to a container having an opening and an edge forming the outer periphery of the opening, and has at least one water-repellent breathable sheet, wherein the body has a joining region corresponding part corresponding to the region joined to the container along the edge of the container, and a lid region corresponding part formed from the inside of the joining region corresponding part, the lid region corresponding part having a through portion, and at least a part of at least one of the breathable sheets faces at least a part of the surface of the lid region corresponding part that opposes the container.

[Selected Drawing] Fig. 1