

ABSTRACT

PATIENT INTERFACE AND ASPECTS THEREOF

A ballooning patient interface has a frame that supports a sealing member. The frame and/or the sealing member is secured to the head of a user with headgear, such as a strap. Various features of the sealing member improve comfort for the user in the nares of the users as well as on facial surfaces in contact with the sealing member.

(FIG. 3)