

ABSTRACT

The present invention may provide an asymmetric hydrogenation catalyst capable of resolving enantiomers with excellent enantioselectivity from a carbon-carbon double bond-containing compound. The catalyst according to one embodiment of 5 the present invention includes: an iridium cation; and a ligand bonded to the iridium cation.