

ABSTRACT

Provided is a catalyst having better denitration efficiency at low temperatures compared to the prior art, during a selective catalytic reduction reaction in which ammonia is used as a reducing agent. This denitration catalyst contains vanadium oxide including vanadium pentoxide and has a defect site in which oxygen deficiency occurs in a crystal structure of the vanadium pentoxide.