

Abstract

A method of facilitating participation in gaming activities without actually taking part in the physical exercise of the gaming activity conducted in a specific location through the use of integrating systems of video and audio capture devices and transmission networks via secured internet, transmission line and wireless communication technologies thereby ensuring confidentiality and integrity in the gaming process and recording of gaming results.